Acknowledgements for the Inaugural Issue

We would like to thank the Consortium for the Humanities and the Arts South East England (CHASE) Management Board and the Training and Development Group for supporting Brief Encounters from the outset. Special thanks go to the CHASE team — Steven Colburn, Clare Hunt, and Rob Witts — and to the members of the Academic Steering Committee, whose support and advice have made this journal possible. We are particularly grateful to former Director of CHASE Vicky Lebeau for encouraging us when we first presented the project in December 2015 and to the current Director Denise deCaires Narain for continuing to support the journal. We would have been completely lost without Martin Eve’s invaluable advice on all things related to online and open access publishing. Annette Moore has similarly provided invaluable support when it came to copyright and image permissions. We are personally indebted to our supervisors Julie Anderson and Andrew Hadfield for providing guidance during supervisory meetings and being ever patient in the face of missed deadlines. We are incredibly grateful to the entire Editorial Board for promoting the journal, canvassing submissions, copy-editing, and proof-reading, and to our talented web developer Matt Fay (an honorary member of the board) — we could not have published the first issue without each and every one of you. Thanks also to our brilliant peer-reviewers for being so thorough, and to Josie Dixon for tailoring her peer-review sessions to the needs of the journal. Finally, thank you to the authors for submitting such thought-provoking pieces to the journal and trusting in us to publish them in this first issue — your contributions have made Brief Encounters a worthwhile endeavour.
